The Election

The returns indicate that Senator E. Lee Trinkle, of Wythe has defeated Hon. H. St. George Tucker, of Lexington, for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia. The ladies appear to have voted largely for Mr. Trinkle as they were organized in a non-partisan league. The vote of the ninth district was another victory to the Tucker forces, which could not be overcome by Tucker majorities in the east. The nomination of the Wythe candidate is predicted by 15,000.

Appomattox gives Trinkle at least 625 majority and his workers here, we believe got out every Trinkle vote. Every other county in Mr. Tucker's district gave him a majority. It is now Trinkle against Anderson, the common enemy of the Democratic party, and all Democrats are now for Trinkle.

A New Deal

America's greatest liberty lover, America's greatest gambler, America's greatest loser, the man who endures hardship, debt and isolation in order to think himself the monarch of all he surveys upon his own few acres, and to cling to his so called independence, the farmer is waking from a dream.

He dreamed he was the most independent man on earth. He looks about and finds himself staggering under crop mortgages, laboring to pay his debts, and half his neighbors likewise chained.

In the game he called a gamble, and where he took his losses, like a sport, he finds the dice are loaded and the stakes for which he played, go four times out of five, to others in the game. He boasts his skill in playing a lone hand, but always pays the profits to the groups that are combined against him in the game.

He has put his children in the game, has called upon his wife to help him win, has worked from dawn to dark, from year to year, and smiled at losses season after season when he let the other fellows, who have put their heads together, make the rules and take the winnings.

Speculators on the warehouse floor, brokers on the stock exchange, gamblers at the roulette wheel of Monte Carlo have not gambled like the farmer of our section, for none of them must take such hopeless chances as the farmer of today.

With no malice towards the winners, the greatest loser in the world, the farmer, has decided now to change the rule. He about to call for a new deal and he will make certain that it will be a square deal. But come what may, and at all costs, the farmer has decided that he will not play the game alone while every other group combines to win his stakes.

Sixteen thousand farmers more than half of those who raise tobacco in Virginia have pledged to change the rules and stick together. They stand to gain that independence which they dreamed they had, the hours which their children lost from school while hoeing in the fields, the kind of homes of which their wives have dreamed, and comforts which their toils have fairly earned.

Bankers, merchants, warehousmen and leading state officials are backing the farmers in the final drive, which starts on August 10th.

Virginia leads the way with 16,000 growers pledged to win cooperative markets and fair play. Tobacco growers of Virginia who still persist in playing a lone hand can afford to pass the contract by.

SEA SHORE EXCURSION August 12th

Buckingham
One of my best merchant friends took me to task for saying the wholesale price on sugar at one time of late was 5 cents a pound and I went back to my informant and he said I was right at that time but that now sugar had advanced in price again, but that he had been selling it at retail for 7¢ a pound.

When this letter is published someone will have the honor of being the nominee of the Democratic party for governor and Mr. Elidor would greatly enjoy placing a big rooster over the picture of his favorite, the Hon. Harry St. George Tucker.

Mrs. A. P. Grigg was on the sick list last week and Miss Margaret Grigg came home from Farmville to be with her. Mrs. R. W. Garrett, of Farmville, was here to see her mother Sunday.

Quite a number of Buckingham people would like to be grouped with Appomattox when any change is made in the districting of the State for representation in the legislature. Enterprising ladies are putting up alfalfa hay for their chickens to feed on in winter. We are soon to have rival garages here and competition is said to be the life of trade.

Watch this paper for ad of sale of my personal property.

A young man who was here on furlough from the B&O Ry. Co. has had a re-call, which is the first case of the kind I have heard of.

The dry section of the county is still dry while we were blessed by a copious rain on Tuesday of last week.

In attendance at the Tabernacle was small on week days but there was an immense crowd there on Sunday and even the section allotted to the colored people was well patronized.

The young people are planning an excursion to Willis' Mountain Thursday and they expect to have a picnic.

Misses Nannie and Virginia Ellis have returned home after attending the Summer Normal at the University of Virginia. The Misses Glover got one of their valuable horses kicked and its leg broken the past week and the neighbors kindly came and swung it up in an effort to save its life, but I never knew a broken leg horse to get well and I think the merciful thing to do is to put them to death as soon as the accident happens.

We are told of truck loads of goods being carried out of cities and towns to save high prices on freight; parcel post is very much used now and auto

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making
CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

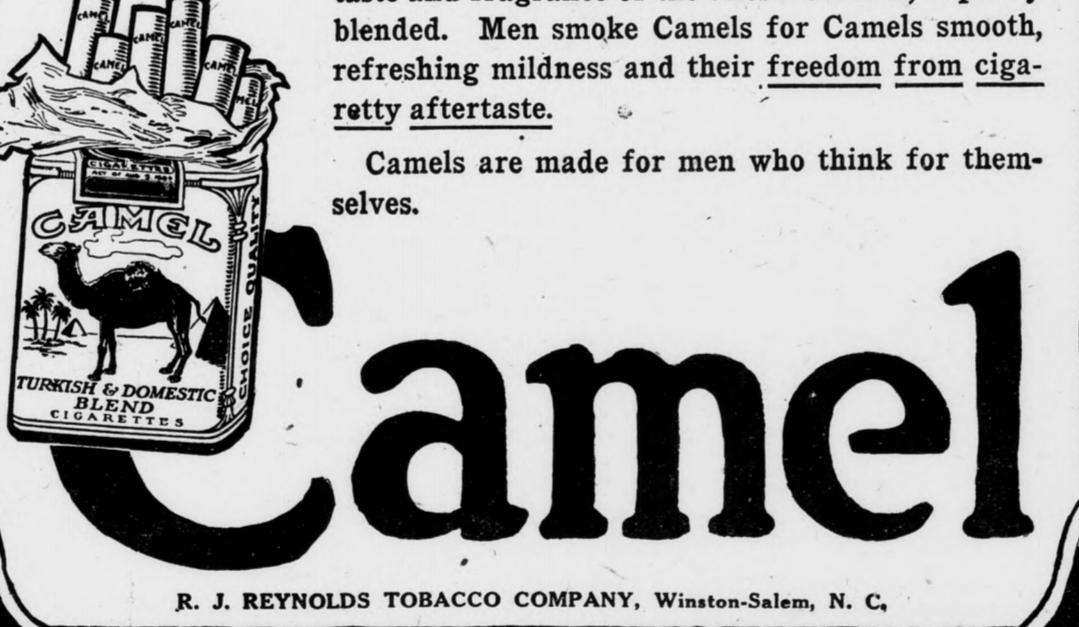

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

Camels are made for men who think for themselves.

Who are more thrifty== Men or Women?

Some say that women are more thrifty than men. We do not know about this. It is very much like saying that women are more honest than men. Nobody knows, and we don't think such questions as these will ever really be decided.

The thrifty proclivity is not influenced by anything that is peculiar to either sex, in our opinion.

Any man or woman with a brain and a backbone can be thrifty. Any thinking person can see the desirability of being thrifty, and any person with vim and self-control can be thrifty—man or woman, boy or girl.
